

Kerry Hiles

Actress, voice artist & emcee

South African actress, singer and bass player, Kerry Hiles, is based in East London, but travels extensively for engagements that include voice-over work for radio ads, documentaries and corporate videos; acting in tv ads; emcee-ing at festivals and fundraisers, as well as hosting school, sport and corporate events.

Highlights of her acting career include:

- Role as “Jacqui Kruger” in soapie, Isidingo (2000-2002)
- Role of “Tweaked Customer” in feature film, Stander

Kerry has become well known for her effervescent hosting style, which thoroughly engages audiences. Her banter at festivals and expos has seen exhibitors experiencing increased sales due to the promotion afforded by Hiles’ emcee abilities, and patrons have enjoyed her knack for singing and emceeing simultaneously.

Hiles also has several years of experience as a radio presenter, and is well respected in the voice-over industry for her skills in the recording studio, whether it is for radio adverts, documentary narration, or on-hold messages for companies worldwide.
